Youth Initiatives

Within the European 'Youth in Action' Programme, Youth Initiatives offer young people an opportunity to create and carry out a non-profit-making, voluntary activity for the benefit of their local community. Through Youth Initiatives young people 'think global, act local', stimulate social and cultural change in their reality. They acquire experiences, skills, knowledge and attitudes beneficial for their personal and professional life.

The core of Youth Initiatives lays in youth autonomy and active participation - young people themselves initiate, prepare, realise and evaluate projects. By putting their own ideas into practice young people express their creativity, innovation and entrepreneurship.

Participating in a Youth Initiative provides a non-formal education experience. It makes young people aware of wider, European realities, facilitates the integration of youth in society and through that offers the added value of a European Dimension. Youth Initiatives are quality-checked regarding content criteria.

Youth Initiatives could also be carried out in a network with European partners and through this creating an extra platform for exchanging ideas, practice and experiences between local communities all over Europe.

During the Youth Initiative Roberta Schuhmann developed the following competences. This process was supported by a mutual dialogue with first name last name (optional).

Communication in mother tongue

Through my communication with printing companies, I got more acquainted with the terms used in "business German" and in the field of media design.

Communication in foreign languages

This was the first time that I ever communicated in English outside of school. Through the project I had the possibility to apply and to improve my English skills by talking to and exchanging e-mails with young people from other countries. Step by step, I became more confident in expressing myself in the foreign language.

Mathematical competence and basic competences in science and technology

Since I was in charge of the budget for the brochure, I dealt with printing prices, numbers of brochures etc. Like that, I developed my calculation skills.

Learning to learn

Throughout the project, I was confronted with new challenges: Communicating in a foreign language, using advanced functions of computer programmes, creating a high-quality publication for a wider public, dealing with budgets. These were tasks I had never done before and for which I had to discover new knowledge – on her my and with the help of the team.

Social and civic competences

I experienced how to work best in a team and with international partners. Last but not least, I enjoyed interacting with young people sharing my experience with the aim to contribute to a greater awareness on drug-related issues in the local community.

Sense of initiative and entrepreneurship

Liaising with media design companies, I became more confident contacting and interacting with professionals in this field.

Cultural awareness and expression

For the first time, I interacted with young people living in other countries. I had the opportunity to discover cultural differences and similarities and to discuss different national realities. Learning more about other countries, I became more aware of my own cultural background.
